* * *

A big bozo is awakened when a kitten knocks a vase off a shelf and said vase bounces off said bozo's dome. He dashes up, shakes out his pillow and Eddie appears all knotted up like a pretzel.

The boys compete strenuously with each other to complete their morning toilette. Eddie's hair stands on end and glue manages to hold it down. A bottle of ink causes the bozo's face to look like a colored man's.

But just as they are prepared to leave the landlady appears and boards up the doorway. The boys climb along the window sill. Eddie pulls himself hand over hand on a cross wire and just as he is about to step on a telegraph pole, a lineman cuts the wire.

He swings back, through his own window, sailing into bozo and kicking him through the landlady's barricade. The two escape but being late for work Eddie sneaks in and gets his cab. The big bozo gets fired and takes a job with a rival company.

They trail each other all over the town and battle repeatedly for fares. Finally the bozo plants a time bomb in Eddie's car. His own cab accidentally gets linked with his rival's. Then he steers into a garage and a terrific explosion occurs. Both boys are almost destroyed but happily cling to their wheels - the only things left.
